Toque Tuesday : Recap

Written by: Emily Palmer

Toque Tuesday, the annual community ball hockey tournament returned on February 7th to Civic Plaza in-person for the first time in a couple years. The event was organized by Tim Baillie, retired fire captain. The goal of Toque Tuesday is to raise awareness and bring attention to homelessness, and is a part of the non-profit organization Raising the Roof's homelessness prevention initiative.

Despite it being a cold and rainy day, participants and onlookers cultivated a positive and inspiring environment surrounding such a serious and important issue. Putting on this outdoor event rain or shine puts into perspective the daily struggles faced by the homeless population who often do not have a choice when it comes to being exposed to the elements on a daily basis.

In addition to watching community teams of all ages compete in a ball hockey tournament, donations in the form of cash or warm clothing were welcomed to aid the homeless population in Surrey. After the conclusion of the tournament, a piper from the Surrey Fire Department led the participants from City Hall's Atrium back to the rink for an Indigenous welcome.
